FAQ

Over the past ten decades, GPS technology has long gone from the military to the mainstream.

It's right now a fixture in cars, many people carry transportable GPS models with them on outside ventures, and we're no longer wowed by the truth that you can specifically figure out your place almost anywhere in the world.

USB devices must become specifically supported in a virtualized atmosphere. Make use of BootCamp instead.

One other thing you can perform with GPS nevertheless isn't common yet-and it should be: hooking up a GPS device to your Mac.. If you desire to keep attempting to make use of it via Parallels, set up the 3096 beta construct.
